WIZARD THEATRE

Biograph "THE ROCKY ROAD" Biograph
A story of fate's capriciousness. It shows the relentlessness of justice and the cryptic prepotence of Providence. Coincident as the episodes may appear they are evolved with a convincing consistency rarely found in dramatic stories of this type, making it one of the most heart-stirring productions ever made by the Biograph.

"BATTLE IN THE CLOUDS"

War in the air. Just as it will be in years to come when battles will be fought in the clouds. The most sensational film ever made.

"THE PARK OF CASERTA"

Private domain of the King of Italy. This show we highly recommend.

We have had so many complaints concerning the annoyance caused by the large hats now in use that we believe that all patrons of moving picture shows have at one time or other been prevented from seeing the pictures by the hats of those in front and have been considerably annoyed by this interference. We have considered various ways to eliminate this trouble and have finally decided to ask the ladies who cannot conveniently remove their hats to occupy the seats on the left side of the room.

HARDWARE

Our stock consists of many pieces that are used frequently but were seldom carried in Gettysburg stores. We now have a complete line of pipe fittings.

TOLD GOVERNORS OF CELEBRATION

Fiftieth Battle Anniversary Commission Chairman Asks Governors in Session to Send Representatives to Meetings of Commission.

Before the conference of the Governors of the various states of the Union now in session at Washington, General Louis Wagner, of Philadelphia, urged the attendance of representatives of the states at the meetings of the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg Commission.

General Wagner is chairman of the commission and is one of Philadelphia's most influential Grand Army men. He is a past commander-in-chief of the Department of Pennsylvania, an ex-Register and Recorder in Philadelphia, and president of the Third National Bank and Girard Trust Company.

The action of General Wagner at Washington this week is in line with the general plans of the Pennsylvania Commission in arranging for the celebration. By Act of Legislature the Governors of the various states were asked to appoint commissions to act in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Commission. Many of the Governors have already made these appointments. Western as well as Eastern states taking up the plan quickly.

If the suggestion of General Wagner is followed there will be a large gathering of noted men in Gettysburg in the near future as the next meeting of the commission is to be held here and the representatives of the various states will come here for the meeting.

ENLIST PRESIDENT TAFT'S INTEREST

A Washington dispatch to the Philadelphia Public Ledger today says:

General Louis Wagner president of the commission to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg, with the Rev. J. Richards Boyle also of the commission, and Major Alexander McDowell, a commissioner and clerk of the House, called on President Taft Wednesday to secure his aid in making the affair a success.

The anniversary will be held July 1, 2 and 3, 1913. The President will send a message to Congress calling its attention to the celebration.

The delegates called on Speaker Cannon, and General Wagner told the Speaker the people admired him because he was a fighter. The speaker accepted an invitation to attend the ceremony.

It is remarkable that Georgia was the first State to accept the invitation to participate, North Carolina was second, New York third and New Hampshire fourth. Twenty six Governors have signed the intention of their States participating in the event, which will be one of the greatest military affairs seen in the United States.

One brother, Zachariah Spangler, of York, also survives.

DEER KILLING CASE IS HEARD

Case of Monterey Club Hunter Who is Charged with Killing a Buck without Visible Horns, Heard by Squire Hill. The Testimony.

A hearing of unusual interest was held today before Squire Hill regarding the alleged violation of the state game law by C. Edward Beeler, a member of the Monterey Hunting Club, during the season of 1909. Mr. Beeler is charged with killing a buck without visible horns. J. L. Williams, Esq., represented the Commonwealth and John D. Keith, Esq., of Gettysburg, and Watson R. Davis, Esq., of Waynesboro, the defense. At time of going to press the hearing was still in progress.

Detective Wilson, who brought the prosecution, was the first witness called and testified to his visit to the Monterey Hunting Camp where he saw the deer alleged to have been killed by S. Edward Beeler, the defendant. He testified that the "horns" were but a half inch long and did not protrude above the hair, in other words were not visible. During the cross-examination Mr. Keith asked "Did you see the deer through a hole in the tent?" "No sir," Mr. Wilson indignantly replied, "I didn't look through any hole. You can't get off any stuff like that on me."

Perren Robert, who accompanied Mr. Wilson to the camp, and who also viewed the deer, testified that the horns were not through the hide and were not visible above the hair.

The third witness was Dr. H. A. Mentzer, a druggist of Blue Ridge Summit, who removed the skin from the animal. He was called by the Commonwealth but proved to be a very valuable witness for the defense.

Mr. Williams produced a letter from the defendant to him saying that Dr. Mentzer had shipped the carcass to Charles H. Eldon, a Williamsport taxidermist. Dr. Mentzer denied this and on cross examination said that the horns were visible a half inch above the hair when shot. The hair was later trimmed to make the horns show more plainly but the witness claimed this was not done with any thought of evading the law. He testified still further that no effort was made to hide the deer and that it was shown to many people. He also testified that the horns were through the skin about three quarters of an inch.

The next witness called was Charles H. Eldon. He testified that when he received the hide there were two protuberances on the skull visible above the hair, the one being longer than the other. The examination of Mr. Eldon occupied some time but little else of importance was brought out.

Dr. Kalbfus, of the State Game Commission, followed and his testimony proved of unusual interest. He testified that the hide as he then saw it showed that the deer never had a horn and that to have been legally shot the horn would have to be through the skin. The state official made a few rather startling statements during his examination, among them the following:

"Deer don't have horns." This statement is explained later on.

When asked for the definition of a horn he said, "A male deer sheds its horns every Spring, one falling a day or two ahead of the other. Then at the end of two weeks there appears an enlargement where the horn has fallen, swelling almost like a tomato. This grows very rapidly, is vascular and soft and the points are blunt after it grows out. It is formed of the same substance as the hair of the animal. After it reaches its full growth it starts to harden and the points finally become sharp and are known as horns."

Dr. Kalbfus then said that in common acceptance what the scientist calls an antler is a horn. On this the State Game Commission bases such prosecutions. He said that after the horn had perforated the skin and was visible above the hair it was legal to kill the deer.

CO-EDUCATION IS OPPOSED

That the members of the Philadelphia-Gettysburg Club—one of the strongest alumni organizations of Gettysburg College—are strongly opposed to the system of co-education now in vogue at the college was shown in a marked manner at the annual banquet of the club in Philadelphia this week.

Hon. J. Hay Brown, Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, was one of the speakers and after speaking of the many advantages of the smaller colleges, and of Gettysburg in particular, said:

"I have two young sons whom, when they are older, I expect to send to Gettysburg College (applause) provided the old traditions of the institution are maintained and provided it once again becomes a school for boys and not a school for girls."

This last proviso brought forth vigorous applause which continued for such a long time that it was quite a while before the distinguished gentleman could continue.

The matter of a successor to the college presidency was talked over at length but no formal action taken. Dr. W. H. Dunbar, of the college Board of Trustees, said among other things that the report generally current that the Board had some dark secrets was, to his knowledge, entirely incorrect.

Dr. H. B. Nixon represented the college faculty at the banquet and there were a number of prominent alumni present, Hon. T. Dimmer, Beeler, Dr. Milton H. Hartzell and Dr. John Marshall being among them.

HIGH TRIBUTE

Says the Harrisburg Telegraph: "George D. Thorn, late of Gettysburg Adams County, is officially chief clerk of the department of the secretary of the commonwealth and unofficially grand advisor in general to those who want to know. Mr. Thorn was born in time to be present at the battle of Gettysburg, but he spent the three days in the cellar, where he was sent by his careful parents being at the same time about four years old. When he grew older he aided in turning Adams County over to the Republican party a few times, and, finding that the town was too small to sustain the weight of the battle and himself, secured an appointment on the Hill. He has been here ever since and the Hill won't let him go. He has absorbed a vast amount of information and it is always ready in terse, telephonic packages. Incidentally he has found time to collaborate in a law book or two, the very first handbook ever gotten out about practice before the Board of Pardons, to say nothing of issuing sailing charts for political committees and keeping Capitol Hill up to the scratch as the real live place to find out."

LOWER END BOYS IN NIGHT FIGHT

Union and Conewago Townships Produce Young Men who Engage in Night Fight and are given a Hearing by Squire Lilly.

Squire V. H. Lilly, of McSherrystown, heard a case on Wednesday in which Herman Myers and Elder Starnier, of Union township, were defendants, charged with assault and battery on oath of John Shue, of Conewago township.

The prosecutor and defendants are boys who, it developed from the evidence, were nursing grudges for about a year. The smoldering fire flamed forth on the evening of Wednesday, January 12, on the way home from "singing school," at Swartz's school house, and there was a fist encounter in which according to the testimony Shue was the aggressor. Young Starnier came out of the melee with a black eye, while the prosecutor, it seems, was not scratched.

At the hearing Lewis D. Sell, Esq., appeared for the defendants. Justice Lilly reserved his decision until Saturday, January 22, at 9 a. m.

RAILROAD CHIEF ACCUSED

Alleged to Have Been Party in $550,000 Conspiracy.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—Charges that Benjamin Thomas, former president of the Chicago & Western Indiana railroad, Charles R. Kappes, former real estate dealer for the road, and John C. Fetzer, obtained at least $550,000 from the railroad through a real estate conspiracy, are made in a bill for an accounting filed in the circuit court.

According to the bill, the real estate transaction in question occurred in 1906 and involved the expenditure of $2,521,899. The defendants are alleged to have divided the profits.

When the railroad wished to acquire property the bill says, Thomas would refer the matter to Kappes. Fetzer, who was in the real estate business, would be directed to make the purchase and the money turned over to him. Fetzer would make the purchase and report the amount paid.

It is charged that in his report to the railroad company Fetzer would state a greater amount than he had paid. Then, it is alleged, he would divide the difference with Thomas and Kappes.

TRAPPED BY FOLDING BED

Senator Jeff Davis' Daughters Narrowly Escaped Death.

Washington, Jan. 20.—A peculiar accident to two daughters of Senator Jeff Davis of Arkansas, occurred here, in a rooming house, the younger girl, Lucille, nine years old, was kneeling by a folding bed in the Davis home, saying her prayers. Another daughter, Lucille, was in the bed. In some unaccountable manner the bed suddenly closed automatically, imprisoning Lucille and catching her by the arms, both of which were broken at the wrists. Lucille was in danger of being smothered when the crisis of the younger girl attracted the attention of the family.

FLEEING MURDERER FEIGNS SUICIDE

Watts Posse by Ruse After Killing Wife With Axo.

Seaford, Del., Jan. 20.—George Driggins, a young man living one mile west of Preston, arose early and started to his work on a neighboring farm. For some unknown reason he returned shortly afterwards, and finding his wife, Alverda, still lying in bed, he grabbed an ax and killed her.

The house where the tragedy occurred is occupied by two families, but all the members of the family sharing the house with Driggins were absent at the time of the murder except one little girl, who was attracted by Driggins' suspicious actions, found Mrs. Driggins' body and spread the alarm.

A posse was soon on the trail of the murderer, who was seen to run in the direction of Lineaster pond. The searchers soon came to a hole broken in the ice and the cap of the fleeing man was lying near it. It was then supposed that he had committed suicide by drowning himself, but hours of searching in the water failed to reveal his body.

The members of the posse decided that Driggins had left the suicide traces for the purpose of fooling his pursuers and allowing him more opportunity to escape.

The murder was committed, it seems, without the slightest provocation, and has aroused the community to a pitch of bitter indignation. If the murderer is captured by his pursuers he may be lynched.

LEOPOLD'S DAUGHTER TOWED

Princess Clementine and Prince Victor Napoleon Engaged.

Brussels, Belgium, Jan. 20.—Official confirmation of the betrothal of Princess Clementine, daughter of the late King Leopold, and Prince Victor Napoleon, was given out. The marriage will be celebrated in Brussels next November.

As far back as 1905 the engagement of Princess Clementine to Prince Victor Napoleon was rumored. The prince is a cousin of King Victor Emmanuel. King Leopold strenuously opposed the marriage and for a time practically confined his daughter to the palace. His objection was said to be based on the ground that his friendliness with France made impossible the alliance of his daughter with a pretender to the French throne.

BOY BEAR FIGHTER IS DEAD

Typhoid Fever Causes the Death of Mervyn Young Hunter.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Jan. 20.—Herbert Kester, the twenty-year-old boy of Warhoun Hill, who shot a big bear late in December, in a spirited encounter, is dead. He succumbed to a big bear through which he followed and wounded it. He was charged four times by the bear and had narrow escapes before he finally managed to kill it. Then he spent all night in tanning it and carrying the heavy skin home. He was prostrated by the overexertion and excitement, and while in a greatly weakened condition he developed typhoid fever, which caused his death.

Drops Dead Eating His Own Pie

Freeport, L. I., Jan. 20.—Henry Mead, a baker, dropped dead here after eating a piece of his own pie for breakfast. The doctor ascribed death to heart failure, superinduced by acute indigestion.

Trapping Baboons.

Hagenbeck in his book says that baboons are caught in traps made much like the huts of savages. Food is put into the huts, and once the baboons go inside a trapdoor closes behind them. Outside baboons make a great deal of noise and urge the prisoners to escape. When the trappers come the captured baboons are terror stricken and try to force their heads through the walls of the huts. One baboon was caught three times in the same trap, and several when turned loose got back into

WALL STREET POOL SMASHED

Spectacular Break in Price of Hocking Stock.

TWO BIG FIRMS FAIL

Plans of Manipulators Went Sadly Awry, and Two Concerns Involved Closed Their Doors, With Liabilities of Over $8,000,000.

New York, Jan. 20.—A pool in Columbus and Hocking Coal and Iron stock managed by James R. Keene, collapsed, with the result that might be expected when for the second time in stock exchange history the plans of the master manipulator went sadly awry. Stocks went down. Two stock exchange firms failed, with liabilities of more than $8,000,000 at a conservative estimate. The stock market became confused.

The stock exchange firms which failed were Lathrop, Haskins & Co., 50 Wall street, and J. M. Flske & Co., 42 Broadway. The former was the principal firm in the Hocking pool and the latter, while not a member of the pool, carried a great deal of the stock for customers and was unable to respond to calls from the banks for additional collateral. Lawyers for the firms said that the Lathrop firm's assets were $1,500,000 and its liabilities $3,400,000 after the close of business on Tuesday, and that the Flske firm had liabilities of $2,500,000 and assets of $2,900,000 at the same time. What the liabilities amounted to after the collapse of Hocking stock none of the lawyers would estimate even by a rough approximation.

Hocking sold at 20 about a year ago. The company has never paid a dividend on the stock and has earned an average of but $50,000 in those recent years when it has not shown a deficit after the payment of charges. When the pool took hold and Mr. Keene was employed as manager the stock advanced rapidly and constantly, though charges of flagrant manipulation were frequent, until it sold at 91 1/4. Its high market position had been maintained fairly well throughout this month, and Wednesday, before the weakness of the pool was disclosed, the stock sold at 88 1/4.

From this high price the stock broke, almost without a rally, to 25, a loss of 63 1/4 points, or 72 per cent of its market value. The subsequent rally was feeble. The closing price was 32, a net loss of 54 1/4 points in the day.

The members of the pool supposed themselves intact and immune when the market opened. After the break one accused the other of quietly unloading, and there was even heard the charge that Mr. Keene, who has been reported holed on the stock market as a whole, had directed his principal attention to other things than Hocking. The wranglings over the responsibility for the break, the charges that this or that holder had unloaded on the others are still unsettled.

A FAST CONDUCTOR

Leaped Off Train, Rescued Burning Child and Caught Last Car.

Elkins, W. Va., Jan. 20.—As L. D. Combs, a conductor of a Coal and Coke railroad, passenger train was running out of Lethers he saw in the doorway of a section hand a two-year-old child with its clothing in flames. Combs jumped off, dashed into the doorway, fought off a dog, put out the flames with his bare hands, and then by sprinting caught the rear platform of the last coach of his moving train.

SULTAN'S PALACE BURNED

Seat of Turkish Parliament Practically Destroyed by Flames.

Constantinople, Jan. 20.—The palace of Chergan, where parliament sits, was practically destroyed by fire. An incendiary belonging to the reactionary party is blamed.

Bogus Mining Certificate.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Jan. 20.—Mine officials of the Lackawanna company caused the arrest of Peter Gubles, who presented a bogus mining certificate and asked for work. The man said he was given the certificate by another party. The names of the members of one of the mining examining boards were signed to the certificate. The latter declared that their signatures were forged. It is believed the party issuing the certificates has conducted a wholesale business in that line.

Landslide Bares Snake Den.

Montclair, N. J., Jan. 20.—A rock on the side of Orange mountain gave way and rolled down into the valley about 300 feet, until it was stopped by a thicket of trees. At least 250 snakes of the black and garter species, ranging in size from a foot to five feet long, were unearthed.

SENT TO "SAVE" STUDENTS

Wild Man Knocks Six of Them Over With Carpet Bag.

New York, Jan. 20.—"The Lord has sent me to save your souls. I am appointed to this mission," said a huge stranger, of rough dress and wild manners, to the students of Fordham college as they were pouring out from lectures. And without further explanation he felled the nearest student with a blow on the head from his heavy carpet bag.

The students tried to rush the stranger. He felled six of them in succession with his carpet bag and then knocked out a special officer who had come to the rescue. A mounted policeman was repulsed on the first attack by a blow on his horse's nose, but he came back again at the gallop a second time and bowled the missionary over.

In the police station the prisoner gave his name as John Roth, of this city, and was held for an examination into his sanity.

AIRSHIP TO CARRY 300

Count Zeppelin Planning Dirigible Balloon For Heavy Passenger Traffic.

Cologne, Prussia, Jan. 20.—Count Zeppelin is planning a large airship capable of carrying 300 persons, and which is to be proposed to use in a passenger service to be established between Hamburg and London. A service will also be maintained from Hamburg to Cologne and Baden-Baden. The craft will be 564 feet in length and about 85 feet in diameter and driven by eight motors. It is planned to employ four motors in ordinary weather, reserving the others for any emergencies.

USED SHOVEL TO SPANK HIS WIFE

Atlantic City Man Sets New Pace For Husbands.

Atlantic City, Jan. 20.—Michael Hogan set a new pace for husbands who wish to chastise their wives, by turning Mrs. Hogan across his knees and administering a spanking of the old-fashioned sort with a fire shovel. The indignant woman ran from the Hogan domicile as soon as she was released from the unidentified position which she occupied during the chastigation, and a policeman who heard her tale of woe arrested the husband.

"That is certainly no way to treat a lady," declared Magistrate Hughes after he had heard the story. Hogan was jailed to await the action of the next grand jury, who will listen to the story of the spanking with all its details when they consider the case.

KAUFMAN BEATS O'BRIEN

Had the Best of Four Rounds in Six-Round Bout.

Philadelphia, Jan. 20.—Al Kaufman, of San Francisco, had his revenge on Jack O'Brien, of this city, before the National A. C. The rival heavies had a lively six-round session, and at the termination it was apparent that the Californian was entitled to all the glories that went with the encounter.

In every round with the exception of the first and the second Kaufman was in the lead. It was O'Brien's generalship and long campaign in the ring that helped him to survive the fight. He was on the verge of a knockout several times.

To Test Corporation Tax Law.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—Another suit has been brought by a local bank to test the corporation tax law. W. H. Miner, a stockholder in the Corn Exchange National bank, asked the court to restrain the directors from paying the tax on the ground that the law was unconstitutional.

Jail Burned; Prisoners Rescued.

System In Farming.

No other business in the world would stand the amount of mismanagement and nonmanagement that the farmers do. It is time for the farmer to study modern business methods and put them in practice. It is a time of wonderful prosperity on the farm, but greater things are ahead if the farmer will make systematic use of his opportunities.

As with a child, the time for getting most effective work in farming is the character and type of a farmer at the start. For this reason it is better to purchase fruit trees that are a year old rather than take a chance on a new tree.

The low head, which is so highly prized by most orchardists, is better secured by cutting the young tree back to the same height as the two feet or more from season it is set. This induces the growth of sturdy lateral branches and gives the trunk a stocky character that is of great value in succeeding years. Whether the tree should be given the vase shaped open top or the round and more close growing top will depend to a great extent upon the climatic conditions prevailing.

DON'T WAIT

Take Advantage of a Gettysburg Citizen's Experience Before It's Too Late.

When the back begins to ache, Don't wait until backache becomes chronic; Till serious kidney troubles develop; Till urinary troubles destroy night's rest.

Profit by a Gettysburg citizen's experience.

Miss K. Crouse, 35 West St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I suffered from kidney disease for years and was unable to find anything that would give me even temporary relief. I endured a great deal of misery from pains in the small of my back and I was also greatly troubled with headaches and dizzy spells. My kidneys gave me much trouble and the complaint was growing worse daily. When a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box at the People's drug store and they proved to be just what I required. They went at once to the seat of the trouble and gave me immediate relief. I am now in better health than before in years, and it is all due to the curative powers of Doan's Kidney Pills."

A Swirling Sport.
At Waikiki, the home of surfboating for pleasure, there is no dangerous reef, but in the south Pacific often the reef is two miles from shore and is exposed at low tide. The waves form almost on the edge of the reef and drop down upon the hard coral perpetually, covering the reef for the time being with about two feet of rushing water. The canoe that must jump this reef places itself before a wave, every one paddles for dear life, and if the boat does not touch coral, but is held suspended until a cushion of water rushes on ward to receive it, the jump is successfully negotiated, the reef is crossed, and there is but a two mile paddle across the quiet lagoon to the sandy beach. If the bow of the canoe does touch the coral on the down leap there is a shattering of the dugout, and its occupants are sent flying in every direction. One might laugh at this at Waikiki where there are no sharks, but not in the south seas.

Tons of Pins.
Nothing better shows the bigness of little things than the manufacture of pins. In England there are made each week between fifteen and sixteen tons of the small necessities, the materials being iron, steel and brass. The yearly production would amount to about 100 tons. The number of pins included in this great weight would make any ordinary figures seem insignificant—would, in fact, defy realization or comprehension. Germany also makes great quantities of pins, her production totaling about 144 tons a year. The United States makes great quantities of pins and imports many from England. Most of the latter country's output is manufactured in Birmingham by two firms, one of which has been in existence nearly a century and the other over a century.—Philadelphia North American.

He Didn't Complain.
Young Wife—This talk about men being so impatient when a woman is getting ready to go anywhere is all nonsense.
Friend—Doesn't your husband complain at all?
Young Wife—No, indeed. Why, last evening I couldn't find my gloves and had a long hunt for half a dozen other things, and yet when I was finally dressed and went downstairs to my husband there he was reading and smoking as calmly as if I wasn't half an hour late.
Friend—Well, I declare! Where were you going?
Young Wife—To prayer meeting.

PILES BRING DESPAIR

Take Courage! Internal Treatment will Cure

Piles make life unhappy and ruin the best disposition. Most sufferers have been bitterly disappointed by many failures to find a cure. A medicine in tablet form, taken internally, that avoids the unpleasant features of ointments, suppositories and operations, and cures thoroughly by removing the INSIDE cause, is surely worth trying, especially as The People's Drug Store, Gettysburg, Pa., guarantees it.

UNION MINERS IN CONVENTION

Report Shows Total Membership is 265,274.

30,000 HARD COAL MEN IN

Auditors' Report Shows $470,820 in Treasury, the Smallest Amount in Many Years—Many Think It Precludes Possibility of Strike in Soft Coal Fields.

Indianapolis, Jan. 20.—The old fight against President Thomas Lewis was revived in the national convention of the United Mine Workers of America. It came up over the presence of sixty paid organizers in the convention as delegates. The enemies of Lewis contended that these men, being in the regular pay of the organization, ought not to receive pay as delegates to the convention, but Lewis and his friends defended them with their votes and carried the day.

President Lewis' Report.
The national officers submitted their reports, that of President Lewis being among them. He showed that the total membership of the organization is now 265,274. He spoke of the non-union miners in Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky and Alabama, and said they numbered 120,000. He said that more than $3,000,000 had been spent since 1900 to organize these states, but the efforts had been unsuccessful. Regarding the anthracite miners he said: "There are employed in the anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania 174,000 mine workers. Of this number of men and boys there are about 30,000 organized. In fact, the number upon which per capita tax was paid in November, 1909, was 23,031 members. Why does this condition exist? An investigation and study of the anthracite situation convinces me that the inactivity and the failure of the mine workers to be better organized is due principally to their own indifference. The same condition applies to many of the bituminous mining districts."

He then recounts the efforts made last year to meet the operators in Pennsylvania, and says: "When the usual conditions in the anthracite region and the entire country at that time are carefully considered, the representatives of the United Mine Workers were fortunate in being able to convince the anthracite operators to grant concessions in order to negotiate and sign a contract. I know that it was quite a surprise to many people that any improvement was made in the award of the strike commission without even the suspension of mining operations for a single day."

$470,820 in Treasury.
The report of the national auditors on the financial condition of the organization was a surprise to the convention, as the amount of money on hand is the smallest for many years. Last year there was $595,739, and the income for the current year was $831,750, but the expenses exceeded the income, and there is now but $470,820 on hand, and all the expenses of the convention to meet.

Delegates who listened attentively to the reading of the financial report said that it seemed to preclude the feasibility of backing up the demand for an increase in wages with a strike, as it showed conclusively that the organization is not in financial shape for a contest with the operators.

1045 MINERS KILLED

Death Toll Was 16 Per Cent Less Than in 1908.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 20.—A marked decrease in the number of fatal accidents in the mines of the state is shown for 1909 as compared with the year 1908, according to reports received from the anthracite and bituminous mining districts of Pennsylvania by Chief of Mines James E. Roderick. During the year just closed the total number of lives lost was 1045, as compared with 1259 in 1908, showing a decrease of 205, or 16 per cent.

The record for the year in the soft coal region was 494 fatal accidents, against 572 in the previous year, a decrease of 78, or about 14 per cent.

In the hard coal region the decrease was more marked. In all 551 persons lost their lives, against 678 in 1908, the decrease being 127, or about 19 per cent.

During 1909 the number of accidents was 2198, or just two more than in the previous year.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Jan. 20.—All of the 1500 striking mine workers of the Lehigh & Wilkes-Barre Coal Company returned to work this morning, having decided to give up the strike. EARL OF TWELVE ELOPES

Knocks Down Thirty-Year Old Mother of Bride.

Gettysburg, Pa., Jan. 20.—When her mother objected to her marrying Edward Struror, aged twenty-two, because she was so young, Mary Pollock, of St. Clair, aged twelve years, eloped, the couple securing tickets for Cleveland, O.

Struror met indifference on the part of the girl's mother when he appeared at her home, and it is alleged he struck the parent a blow on the head, rendering her unconscious. By the time she recovered to give the alarm the pair were on their way west.

Mrs. Pollock, who is but thirty years of age, has preferred a charge of kidnapping against Struror, and the state constabulary, stationed at this place, are on the trail of the pair.

This is the youngest girl to run away and get married within the recollection of Schuylkill's police officials.

WALSH NOW CONVICT—COST

Ecigs Five-Year Sentence in Leavenworth, Kan., Prison.

Leavenworth, Kan., Jan. 20.—John E. Walsh, the convicted Chicago banker, arrived at the federal penitentiary here and began serving his sentence of five years. His number as a convict is 6861.

As the party of officials and relatives that accompanied Walsh alighted from a train at Kansas City a photographer darted toward him. Swinging his suit case, Walsh's son literally mowed down the photographer, crying him and his camera against the side of a Pullman sleeper.

FIVE DEAD, SCORE INJURED IN FIRE

Girls Leaped From Windows of Burning Factory.

Philadelphia, Jan. 20.—Five persons were killed and about a score injured in a fire that destroyed a four-story building on the southwest corner of Chancellor and South American streets, near Second and Walnut streets. Several of the injured will probably die.

The flames spread through the building with such rapidity that the firemen were powerless to save it, and the loss on building and contents will reach close to $75,000. The majority of the firms occupying the structure were shirtwaist and other garment manufacturers.

During the progress of the fire about fifteen men and girls leaped from upper windows of the building into the street below. All these were hurt to a greater or less extent and some of them are not expected to live.

All of the dead, consisting of four girls and a man, as well as most of the injured, which number a score, came from a single establishment, the shirtwaist shop of Joseph Chatzkin, on the fourth floor.

Like sheep after a frightened leader, one after another of the young women in the Chatzkin shop jumped out of the fourth-story windows to certain death in Chancellor street after the first girl, losing her reason at the cry of "Fire!" and the smell of smoke, had lunged up the eash and leaped. Chatzkin saw two of his daughters jump and fell terribly crushed and mangled in the middle of the narrow street, as he was assisting others to escape by the ropes.

COOK'S LAST PROP GONE

No Proof in Original Notes That He Got Pole, Says Copenhagen.

Copenhagen, Jan. 20.—The committee of the University of Copenhagen has completed its examination of Dr. Frederick A. Cook's original notes and confirmed its previous conclusions that not the slightest proof that the explorer reached the North Pole had been submitted.

While the controversy was unanimous in declaring that Cook's claims were absolutely untrue, there are still some of its members who urge that Cook is an honest man though he is not a scientist.

No immediate steps will be taken to rescind the honorary degree conferred upon Cook as the verdict is merely one of "fence unproven" so far as the university is concerned.

INFLUENCE WON STOCK FOR HIM

Says Politician Got $2,000,000 of Phone Shares.

CHARGE TO BE PROBED

It is Said Bankers Thought It Advisable to Buy William J. Connors Chairman of the New York Democratic State Committee.

New York, Jan. 20.—George A. Davis, chairman of the legislative committee investigating telephone and telegraph matters in this state, never smiled in the aldermanic chamber of the city hall when he caused to be read into the record a letter he had received from James M. E. O'Grady dated Rochester, Dec. 10, mentioning a paltry $2,000,000 of telephone stock.

WILLIAM J. CONNORS, having been handed to William J. (Finky) Connors, just because Finky was Finky and chairman of the Democratic state committee.

The letter recited some recent testimony before the supreme court in Rochester, in which, according to Mr. O'Grady, President Albert O. Fenns, of the Alliance bank, of Rochester, and President Thomas W. Finck, of the United States Independent Telephone company, swore to the $2,000,000 present to Connors.

Thought It Advisable to Buy Him.
Mr. O'Grady wrote that Mr. Fenns had sworn that he issued a certificate of stock of the face value of $2,000,000 to Mr. Connors at the request of Mr. Fenns, without any consideration being paid therefor; and that Mr. Finck had sworn that the stock was given to Connors because he was an influential man, and owned two newspapers in Buffalo, and because Connors had been investigating the matter of telephone franchises in New York City. "And it was thought advisable by him (Finck) to buy him (Connors) off by the payment of this $2,000,000 of stock."

Mr. O'Grady added: "We desire to call your attention to this, believing that it is a matter that your committee should probe to the bottom, in order that the real reason why this stock was turned over to Connors should be known."

Colonel Robert C. Clowry, president of the Western Union Telegraph company, said he did not know how many other companies he was president of which were owned or controlled by the Western Union. Colonel Clowry said that messages were sent as fast as possible and in the order of their receipt, and that the amount of traffic does have an effect upon tolls.

E. C. Page, who was doing the questioning, asked: "Would the ability to transmit at a uniform rate of 1000 words a minute have an effect on the rate?" Colonel Clowry said that it would if the company was sure of having enough business to keep up the toll on a twenty-four-hour basis.

Colonel Clowry said that under their contracts the company allowed the railroad on whose right of way it operated 40 per cent of its wires. It owned 1,352,000 miles of wire. Of its authorized capital stock of $100,000,000 there had been issued $99,187,660, and there was in the treasury stock in the sum of $30,131.51. Colonel Clowry was unable to tell how it was that the outstanding stock came out at even figure while the treasury stock represented fractional parts of shares.

Paulhan Makes Another Record.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 20.—With his wife as a passenger, Paulhan engaged in a flight over the adjacent country, establishing a new record for distance and duration with a passenger. The distance covered was approximately twenty-two miles, taking 32 minutes 45 1/2 seconds. Paulhan again ascended with William Randolph Hearst as a passenger. In the second lap Paulhan reached an altitude of 300 feet. Paulhan landed in front of the grandstand, where he and Mr. Hearst were wildly cheered.

"No Three o'clock Fatigue"

The Value of the Monarch Light Touch

A typewriter is not an automatic machine with a fixed output; the amount of work produced must always be dependent upon the operator.

The operator begins work in the morning with a certain supply of physical energy. With the ordinary heavy working typewriter she exhausts that energy before the day's end—then comes "three o'clock fatigue" and slow, dragging work.

Monarch Light Touch lightens the operator's load—draws less on her energy per folio. The result is that the operator is able to maintain full speed right up to closing time, finishing fresh and strong. Her efficiency is increased, the output of her machine is enlarged, and consequently the per folio cost of typewriting to her employer is reduced.

Let us demonstrate this and other Monarch features to you.

The Bishop's Experiment

A Story of a Lost Pin.

By KATE Y. DUNNE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"But, my dear, you are all wrong!" exclaimed the bishop's wife, looking reproachfully over the coffee urn, which had hidden her piquant face from her husband's adoring glance. "I wasn't careless. It was the washer-woman. If you must blame somebody, James, blame her. Of course I didn't mean to leave a pearl pin—and especially one you had given me—in my laundry bag."

That afternoon as he was walking briskly down Main street to make a parish visit in the distance he saw Alene's blue hat and shining hair. His heart had a habit of beating faster at the sight of her slender, dainty figure, and that afternoon she looked even more attractive than usual to him among a crowd of commonplace women. He hurried to catch up with her, but she, too, was walking fast and had turned into Pierce's department store before he was near enough to join her.

He went in, too, and secured a vantage point some feet away, where he waited until he should have a chance to slip into a space next to her.

As he waited he noticed her gold bag laid on the counter beside her muff, out of her direct line of vision. Still the old habit. An idea flashed into the bishop's mind. Object lessons often accomplish what all the lectures in the world fail to do.

Quietly and quickly he laid an arm on the counter, swept it along the glass unnoticed by the mob of women surging toward the bargain Mecca ahead. He was not seen. His hand touched the bag, closed over it, drew it to him, dropped it safely into his pocket.

Was he pickpocket or bishop?

He certainly felt like the former. Never had he felt so object, so criminally miserable, as when he pushed his way out of that shop, for to carry out his object lesson necessitated giving up that anticipated companionship on his walk. So he went on out and down town alone, wondering why the police did not take him by the arm, why no one pointed the finger of scorn, while that wretched gold thing was glittering so brightly in his pocket.

His parolical visit was not pleasant, his walk was not pleasant; nothing was pleasant. He was obliged to eat a solitary lunch, as Alene had rounded out her shopping expedition by lunching at her mother's. Even the telephone bell did not ring, as he half expected it might. Nothing happened, and he and that bag seemed to be the only occupants of that quiet house. Alene returned home just in time to dress for dinner. Then he had a visitor, who detained him until the last moment, so he had no chance for a sight of Alene until he found her at the table.

He had pictured her distraught, worried, had planned it all what she should say and he should answer and what the result would be, but the best laid plans of mice and men gang all awry, and he was disappointed. Alene was simply radiant, hesitating, having put on the blue dress he was so fond of and looking just as she had looked in those days when she had first lured him from sermons and from services by the magic of her charm.

She had seen old friends by chance, had lunched with a group of favorite aunts and cousins who had made much of her and had found just the desired bit of lace at that sale. The day had been a success from start to finish.

"You didn't lose your purse, did you?" The bishop felt impelled finally to jump into the ditch of his own digging. Alene looked her astonishment.

"Lose my purse?" she said. "Why, no, of course, I didn't! What a funny question, James! Just because I lost that pin—or, rather, it lost itself—you needn't think I am going to lose everything else I own."

"Are you sure you have your purse?" The bishop was obviously perplexed at her answer.

"Jimmie," she said, "I am going to send for an alienist. You certainly have softening of the brain. My purse is up in my bureau drawer at this very moment."

The bishop was growing excited. "Go and look for it," he interrupted. "I know it is not there."

Alene was staring at him with marked wonder in her blue eyes. "Jimmie, listen!" she said, emphasizing her words by tapping the table with the end of a spoon. "My purse is in my drawer, where I put it when I came home unless you have stolen it."

"Perhaps I have." The bishop's face was a study in crimson, and he spoke in a loud, dictatorial way. "Go and get it."

Alene's eyes filled with tears. She had never heard her husband speak in that way before. She was hurt and a little frightened, though she would not show it.

"Certainly," she said in a very dignified tone, sweeping out of the room, leaving the bishop as bewildered as he was excited. He was beginning to feel badly that she was about to be so shocked, but surely there was never a

The department of agriculture at Washington has issued a bulletin to the farmers of the middle west, especially to those in Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska and Kansas, on chinch bugs, warning them that another outbreak of this bug pest is likely to occur during 1910 and also suggesting that they make application for the bulletin, which will be sent free from Washington on application. During the past half century the damage done by this insect has been estimated at $60,000,000. In 1871 the more glaring example of her carelessness than this. To think that she had brought her bag home with her when all the time—

Flying footsteps, flashing eyes a gold bag flew into his lap! "There, Jimmie—crazy, crazy boy!" exclaimed a triumphant voice. "Now will you be good?"

The very bag—the very—cobwebs filled the bishop's brain for a moment. "I—I don't see," he stammered. "Wait a minute, will you?" Then he in his turn fled upstairs and went to his bureau drawer. The very bag! It took him some time to get his bearings, to summon up courage to go down to that lighted room and to the reproachful glances of those blue eyes. But the bishop was a good sport, although the brilliancy of his sermons was sometimes open to criticism. Down to the dining room he bravely walked and laid the bag beside its duplicate. Alene looked and looked and looked again. Then her haughtiness was that of a tragedy queen.

"James, explain! Did you think you had my bag? And where did you get it?"

The bishop was silent. He was absently comparing the duplicates. Alene's had her monogram on the framework; the other had only initials, "M. M. R." He repeated it over and over to himself, as if it were a favorite refrain. Then he knew that his day of judgment had come.

"I stole it!"

"Where, James?"

"I saw you on Main street this morning—his tone was of the yet unshriven monk—"I followed you into Pierce's to ask you to walk down to the Grants with me, I saw your bag lying on the counter beside your muff, and I—took it."

"What for?"

"Why, just to—to—the bishop was growing extremely nervous under the steady gaze of those questioning blue eyes—"why, my dear, to—hang it all, Alene! Haven't you any imagination? Can't you imagine why?"

"Certainly not—and I don't propose to try! The idea of a bishop stealing his wife's purse, even trying to give her a moment's fright for any reason at all, is something for which there can be no possible explanation and which I don't even care to think about. But I do say this—I think when a bishop stoops to those dreadful things it is time for his wife to leave him!"

High tragedy was written all over the little lady's face as she folded her arms, arched her eyebrows and looked sternly at her writhing husband. Then a sudden change of expression swept over her mobile face. "James," she said, "did you really and truly do it for the good of your poor black sheep? Did you steal your wife's purse to save her soul?"

Silence.

"James!"

Still silence while the bishop twirled a lock of hair furiously between his thumb and forefinger.

"James, answer me."

The bishop turned appealing eyes to hers—so hard, so cold—and as their eyes met something happened. Laughter such as possesses the spirits of elfland overcame the dignified bishop and his wife. Words were impossible. Anger was a thing of the past. Explanations needed not to be made. Penals of laughter met and mingled across the table. Alene was the first to recover sufficiently to speak.

"Let's see whose it is," she said. And the bishop handed it to her, while wiping his eyes with the other.

"M. M. B. H'm!" muttered Alene. Then, opening the bag, she held aloft a visiting card. "James," she shrieked, "it is mother's!"

His mother-in-law's! The bishop was speechless—this time with horror. Alene was an only child, her mother ever on the watch lest he should let the winds of life blow too strongly on her child. He never could face her after a situation like this. She was always severe on his clerical ideas. And now this!

"What can I do?" His tone was that of a suppliant, and Alene thoroughly enjoyed his misery.

"Do?" she said. "There are several things you can do, and you will have to do one of them quickly, or mother will be here asking my advice about what she can do to recover it. Father gave it to her on their last anniversary, and she will be frantic at having lost it. By the way, I don't see why you didn't see her in the shop."

"Neither do I. Now tell me what to do."

Alene held up her plump hand and counted off fingers as she spoke: "Way No. 1, messenger boy sent to leave it at her door, with no explanation, note or card—spirit too cowardly for a bishop to resort to; way No. 2, send at once to Pierce's, saying you found it—falsehood unworthy of your ideals; way No. 3, take it to her yourself and own up to your methods of improving her child's character."

Silence. The bishop looked downcast, Alene roguish.

"Well, James," she said at last, "what have you decided to do? Mercy, there's the telephone! Oh, my dear, suppose it's mother!"

It was. Muffling the transmitter, Alene whispered in a flush of excitement:

"Dearest, if I save your life now will you stop trying to save my soul any more?"

The bishop's answer was unintelligible, but understood. Still Alene did not show her hand.

"And, dearest, if I do you must let me choose the text for your special sermon next Sunday. Yes? Now listen while I show you what can be done with a complicated situation."

Saved—not by grace, but by Alene—a very meek bishop took his place in the pulpit the following Sunday and announced as his text "The way of the transgressor is hard."

In The Bishop's Carriage

Channing Pollock's dramatization of "In The Bishop's Carriage," from the novel of Miriam Michelson, will be presented in this city on Tuesday, January 25th, at the Walter Theatre, under the management of Baker and Castle, who have engaged a strong company to interpret the various exacting parts, and it is said that Mr. Pollock's greatest play will be offered to the public in a manner that will excel its premier production.

Mr. Pollock is decidedly original in his dialogue and construction of situations. His characters are real, living, breathing human beings. He paints a vivid picture and calls a spade a spade. Miss Stephanie Longfellow will play the part of Nance Olden, the reclaimed thief, and will have ample opportunity to display her ability.
